~ Pope Calls for "World Political Authority" ~

July 8, 2009 | From theTrumpet.com
And a new world financial order

As the leaders of the G-8 states packed their bags and jetted to Italy Tuesday, Pope Benedict XVI provided some moral and spiritual direction to all attending the summit in L'Aquila. Released yesterday, Benedict's 144-page encyclical, the third of his papacy, is titled "Charity in Truth," and deals extensively with the economy, business and finance.

Benedict's voluminous encyclical is widely perceived to be a strong argument for greater institutionalization and regulation of multiple global issues, including the global economy. Associated Press reported yesterday that in the communique, "Pope Benedict XVI called ... for a new world financial order guided by ethics and the search for the common good, denouncing the profit-at-all-cost mentality blamed for bringing about the global financial meltdown" (emphasis ours throughout).

"Profit is useful if it serves as a means toward an end," wrote Benedict, in what was widely perceived to be a slight against U.S.-style capitalism. "Once profit becomes the exclusive goal, if it is produced by improper means and without the common good as its ultimate end, it risks destroying wealth and creating poverty."

Although the pope's condemnation of greed and selfishness as a central cause of the global financial crisis was accurate, it was his repeated admonition to world leaders to form an all-powerful regulatory body to govern a plethora of global issues that was especially noteworthy, and disconcerting.

"In the face of the unrelenting growth of global interdependence," wrote Benedict, "there is a strongly felt need, even in the midst of a global recession, for a reform of the United Nations organization, and likewise of economic institutions and international finance, so that the concept of the family of nations can acquire real teeth."

Benedict's quest for far-reaching reform was even more explicit in the next paragraph:

To manage the global economy; to revive economies hit by the crisis; to avoid any deterioration of the present crisis and the greater imbalances that would result; to bring about integral and timely disarmament, food security and peace; to guarantee the protection of the environment and to regulate migration: For all this, THERE IS URGENT NEED OF A TRUE WORLD POLITICAL AUTHORITY

According to the pope, the solution to some of the world’s most pressing problems—including the global economic crisis, disarmament, food security, immigration and environmental degradation—is the formation of a “true world political authority.”

Chew on that for a moment.

Would the Vatican willingly subject itself to a global political authority that is heavily influenced by an Islamic state, or an atheist government, or even a capitalist nation like the United States? Never. Would the Vatican consistently subject itself to rules and policies created by a global political body heavily dominated by Russia, or China, or North Korea? Not in a million years. Read between the lines of what Benedict is saying.

Surely the only “world political authority” under which Pope Benedict XVI and the Vatican would willingly and consistently function, would be one in which the VATICAN had a controlling influence.

And what significant group of nations do you think might be willing to subject itself to strong Catholic influence? There’s only one answer, really: Europe!

That’s why the pope’s call for the formation of new global regulatory bodies, and a new global political order, is so chilling. Really, Pope Benedict is speaking to European leaders. Ultimately, by calling for a new global political order, Pope Benedict XVI is shepherding the formation of what Bible prophecy says will be a German-led, Catholic-dominated global European empire.

That may sound ludicrous to some. But both history and Bible prophecy say it’s not as extreme as one might think. If you want to prove it, first read Germany and the Holy Roman Empire, then take the time and study Who or What Is the Prophetic Beast? •

Reds In America In 1860 (Who Would've Think It?)

by Al Benson Jr.
7 July 2009

Communists in America in 1860 (and before)? As I live and breathe! We sure didn't learn that in the government schools we attended, did we? Government schools were, and are, in the words of a preacher I knew several years ago, "a billion-dollar tax rip off." What they neglect to teach you is usually of much greater importance than the drivel they manage to pass off as "quality education."

While living in Indiana in the late 1970s, I had a good friend on the East Coast who was the pastor of a small country church out in the middle of nowhere. Yet this man knew more about what the Communists and their fellow travelers were doing in this country than most any other Christian I had ever met. He kept track of them because he correctly perceived them as anti-Christ and part of his ministry was as a watchman on the wall to warn Christians about their machinations. In 1979 he sent me an article from the Communist newspaper Daily World, which contained information dealing with one Joseph Weydemeyer. It turns out that Comrade Weydemeyer was a close friend of Karl Marx, that deadbeat "champion of humanity" who was so busy promoting world revolution that he couldn't even take time out to provide a living for his family. Something else that Comrade Weydemeyer was, to my surprise at that time, was an officer in the Union army during the "late unpleasantness." I can remember thinking back then, "What was this Communist doing in the Union army?" I, who at that time had been a conservative and patriotic activist for about a decade, had never heard of any such thing. Just about all the other patriotic folks I knew back then had never heard about it either. I have since wondered why. Surely some of the anti-Communist groups around the country would have known about and mentioned something like this—wouldn't they? If they did, then nobody I talked to ever saw it, and again, I have to wonder why.

In the early 1980s I began to run across similar information, from a little rightist newspaper here in Louisiana, The Councilor. It is no longer published. It probably didn't have a large national circulation, but the man who published it had apparently done quite a bit of historical research and concluded from it that there was a batch of generals in the Union army under Lincoln who had serious socialist and Communist connections in Europe—the "Forty-Eighters." These were refugees from the failed 1848 socialist revolts which rocked many European countries at that time. When those revolts failed, many of the socialist revolutionaries there ended up, by various routes, in the United States, most of them in the Northeast and Midwest.

The entire concept was a little mind-boggling at first; totally at odds with what I had learned, and I must admit I didn't do a lot with the information for a while. I put it in my files for future reference in case anything else about it came along.

As I started doing more research on the War (thanks to that horrible docudrama of Ken Burns) in the early 1990s, I started to come across some of the names of those socialist and Communist generals of Mr. Lincoln (who was quite familiar with their leftist connections) and I started to think that, maybe, just maybe, this was an aspect of the War and its aftermath which had been rather studiously neglected. So I started to dig a little. I went to the local public library and found a book with a list of all the Union generals during the whole War. I copied that off and began checking out the names of all the generals who sounded foreign. Most of them ended up having been born in Pennsylvania or Illinois or some such place and so I crossed them off. But, checking through old biographical dictionaries in yet another library, I found a dedicated minority of them who were born in Europe and had, indeed, participated in the 1848 revolts. Some of their names are fairly well-known to those who study the history of the War: Franz Sigel, Carl Schurz, August von Willich, Louis Blenker, etc.

At the end of a couple months I had a list of about 18–20 of these socialists and outright Communists who ended up in Mr. Lincoln's armies. You might well be tempted to say: "Oh well, in an army that size, what does such a small number amount to?" Taken by itself, the number isn't big—except that all of the 18–20 ended up brigadier or major generals—which meant they had the command of and influence over thousands upon thousands of Union soldiers. This was the tip of the socialist iceberg in this country. But it didn't stop there. In the following years I came up with a whole batch of more Forty-Eighter names who, for some reason, overwhelmingly supported Lincoln and the Union. I kept digging; "huntin' and peckin'" as my daughter says. As I went along I found a whole batch of those Forty-Eighters in the North who were journalists, which meant they influenced those who read their left-wing material. Some of these socialists even got in on the ground floor of the new Republican Party and helped write the Republican Party platform for Lincoln's election in 1860. So much for those who vainly try to inform me that the Republican Party has a conservative foundation. Just the opposite is true. In 1860 the Republicans were the flaming leftist radicals of America. This was a revelation to me, who had, for years, been a registered Republican. After further research, I became an ex-registered Republican.

Having reached a point where I felt I needed to try to pass some of this on to others, I started out by doing a series of articles in a newsletter I published at that time, A Voice In The Wilderness. I did a series of articles about Lincoln and his socialist supporters in that newsletter and named the names I had come up with up to that point. Eventually, I put four of the newsletters on this subject together in booklet form and entitled it The Socialist Supporters of Honest Abe. That was back in early 1993. I no longer publish A Voice In The Wilderness, but I still have a handful of those old booklets left. I take them around to small groups I speak to and sell them for a buck apiece. It gives folks a little something to take away if they are interested.

Eventually, I updated this material and made it into a regular booklet and later it became one of a series of five booklets (with tests) which I sell in The Home School Mini-History Series. The whole thrust of this material was to give kids who were home schooled, and their parents, a fresh look at what I consider one of the most important parts of this country's history—the period of the War of Northern Aggression and the basically Marxist “reconstruction” which was really the end of the America the Founders gave us. We now live in post-America and most of us don't realize it.

A few years later on down the line, I did an article for the Southern Patriot about Lincoln's socialist and Marxist friends, which they were good enough to publish for me. Several months later, a professor from Georgia wrote another article commenting on my article and he said someone should write a book about this. I contacted him and offered my research material for use should he know of anyone who would write such a book. He emailed me back and suggested that I write the book. I felt distinctly unqualified (still do) but he assured me I could do it. I then asked a couple others who affirmed his thoughts, so I made a beginning. After compiling another mountain of research material and working on about 100 pages of manuscript, I talked to Donnie Kennedy, who is an accomplished pro-Southern author. Donnie offered to help me with it and so we worked together after that for the next two years. Being more familiar with the literary scene than I, Donnie did a lot of the leg work I would not have been able to do, so without him, the book probably would not have gotten published, or if it did it would have taken me ten years instead of two.

The result of our collaboration was our book Red Republicans And Lincoln's Marxists (iUniverse, Bloomington, Indiana). In the book, we dealt with the socialist and Communist penetration of this country in the 1850s and how that penetration helped to change the direction the country went in, not for better but for worse. We dealt with how the Forty-Eighters influenced the Northern government and the Union armies and we discussed Lincoln's support for them and their socialist cause, both in Europe and in this country. This was material we found that most present—day Court Historians only touch briefly on, a comment here or there, and then they pass on, hoping most people who read their stuff won't pick up on this.

The War of Northern Aggression was our French Revolution if you will—a Marxist revolution—and we have to begin to rethink it in those terms or we will never understand subsequent events. Again, I have often wondered just how “conservative” some of our patriotic groups really are. I have a friend who belongs to one I used to belong to. He wrote them suggesting they consider Red Republicans for use as a learning tool for their membership. He has written them twice. The first time they ignored him. The second time all they said was “this might be a project we should consider.” But that was quite a while ago now and they don't seem to have “considered” it yet, so I begin to wonder what the group is all about at this point.

Both Donnie Kennedy and I feel that our book has broken new ground in demonstrating that leftist influence started much earlier in this country than most are aware of and a lot earlier than our “historians” care to admit. That being the case, I submit that if our view of our past is faulty, then our vision for our future will be also.

The Confederation vs. Federal Autocracy:

I have been travelling the back roads of our Southland for the last two months, stopping whenever & wherever to speak with our people.

I have made this a matter of practice ever since I attended my first Southern Conference back in '94.

It is a rewarding experience.

Additionally, it helps me to 're-charge my battery's' as I am reminded that hope for a Confederate restoration is entirely possible.

There on those back roads within that same Southern Frontier of yesteryear remains those Confederates of old.

A little more weathered and older, like me, but mindful of the lies, waste, disobedience and colossal theft brought upon this country & her people by a Federal Demagogue that has transitioned us from a Nation of Independence to a Nation of Dependence.

Washington serves NOT you or I, but themselves.

They have conspired & transformed this land called home into an Autocratic Democracy and far from those Hallowed Halls wherein the Framers created & provided us with a Republic of Sovereign States.

The brute force being exhibited and played out in full sight by the Washington establishment on a daily & regular basis can NO longer be denied.

There is NO longer a 'system' of checks and balances.

Obama is now the residing Federal Autocrat.

His private 14 czar's, stooges in Congress, 'citizen police' and the real power brokers who control him, are the stark reality of every Confederate claim we have ever made.

We and those before us, warned y'all what would come about, dating back & resulting from their Illegal Invasion of our legal & just Christian Confederate Government in 1861.

The 'state-run' media will neither elaborate or remotely call attention to ANY of their present day activities much less those events of 145 years ago when the Devil came a calling in Dixie.

Everything has been homogenized and marginalized to distract us from the painful obvious.

Federal obliteration steals our money and gives it to those who will support them no matter what, as that is their tablet for sustenance & existence.

Further, they use our money to graduate our children from their schools of non-thought who ultimately become tomorrow's teacher's & politician's.

It is a never-ending self greasing wheel and we have become the enslaved and they have become the consummate Federal Overseer.

Nonetheless, there on MANY on those back roads who know full well of what is going on- they are our people, a people who remain in waiting.

They are a decent and beautiful people, full of life with a passionate love for God and Country.

They know the real deal and will spit in the eye of the oppressor if given the chance to do so again. They are the Sheppard's of the faith and they have NOT forgotten their identity and the seed from which they came -they remain vigilant- they are our God Fearing Confederate's. They will not speak to just anyone but will speak to someone who they decide is trustworthy.

And when that 'conversation' comes to fruition, it is as though a vacuum of 20 kilotons has been unleashed.

It is a Power of Faith that NO ruling body can ever hope to conquer.

They are massing my friends and they have kept their 'powder dry and hidden' over these many years.

It was on one of these trips through the Heartland, in Locust, North Carolina, that I came upon an auction on an early Saturday morning.

A farm house was being sold and the owner had recently passed.

Her sibling's could no longer take care of the 16 acre farm and thus, sadly, it was going up for auction.

I pulled in. It was still very early & the crowd that had gathered was still small. I chatted with the local folks and then took my leave and walked the property. It was as though time had stood still there at that ole farm house.

I came upon the Family Graveyard.

Before entering, I asked for God's permission to enter, as it was with total respect for those laying in peace in their land.

I did not want my visitation to be viewed or construed as an intrusion or perceived as a violation bordering on nothing more than 'curious encroachment.'

That is NOT my way.

Permission & respect, unlike the Federal, is always absolute among any Confederate.

There were three centuries of family buried there.

From small children to adults.

In the corner of this sacred ground, there was a tombstone of a Confederate Soldier.

It read:

John Quency Lambert
Corp Co H 42 Regt NC TROOPS
CONFEDERATE STATES ARMY
APR 15 1841 MAR 15 1906

In my moment of private reflection and solitude, I could only provide to a former soldier what another ex-soldier could offer, a well deserved and humble SALUTE, accompanied with a simple and sincere THANK YOU ON A JOB EXCEEDINGLY WELL DONE!

My thoughts were broken as I realized that an older man had been standing along side me, without me so much as even being aware.

He looked at me and said, "Y'all kin?"

I replied, " No sir, just an appreciative person for that which this man, along with so many other's, tried to accomplish and preserve."

He said, "Amen!"

I said, "Do y'all think anyone will ever really know the true reason's for why they fought?"

He said, "I don't know, but one things fer sure....if they could rise up, I KNOW they would do it all over again!"

I asked him his name?

"Ned Honeycutt young fella, Ned Honeycutt."

We shook hands and as quickly as he appeared, he was gone.

You see folks, Confederate's are naturally mindful and respectful of others. We recognize and respect the sanctity of individuality. All we ever wanted was for peace and natural harmony to prevail. Confederate's understand the rudimentary difference between right and wrong and good from bad. We understand the difference between legitimate and illegitimate....and we also know the difference between honesty and treachery and the tragedy that is the natural consequence when evil overtakes good in the name of the public good.

We are a devoutly Christian people who believe in God's theater and it is for all these reasons and more, 'that we will probably have to do it again' if we are to save ourselves.'

There are hundreds of thousands of Ned Honeycutt's out there who, no matter the time passed, know what is going on.

We, in my humble opinion, have entered into the 'Final Hours' of our existence.

The Federal Government, despite ALL they have extolled from us, cannot hide what exists in those History books of old.

Those Books still hold their treacherous feet to the fire, although they will deny their credibility and will leave the written words which formulated our very existence to their cronies within the Judiciary to 'decipher' and judge in the contemporary.....thus reducing them to 'theory' and no longer representative by THEIR standards.

It is no less similar than having the Devil tell us that Christ was but a mere myth!

They have become our Jailor's and have long since abrogated from representation.

They are incapable of representation for they have morphed into a solitary state of their own making and we are simply the provider's for them to feast & salivate upon.

They, along with their various fifth column legions depict us continuously as rednecks, racists, yahoo's and a variety of names whose sole purpose & design is to strip us from any of our former identity & credibility.

At any other time in previous World History, it is a tactic known and referred to as vanquishing your former enemy. Rendering him to a point of persona non grata without so much as a claim of legitimacy.

We call for accountability and they provide paltry excuses for their continued onslaught and misbehavior designed to gratify themselves at our expense.

This is not new to us for we have been forced to live as a conquered Country and People for over 145 years.

But it is new to the rest of America because they don't know any better and are still trying to figure out just what in the hell has happened!

John Quency Lambert of the 42nd North Carolina knew what it was ALL ABOUT, as did his other 325,000 Brethren who fought and died for our Right of Sovereignty & Independence to exist.

He was but 20 years old and he knew the difference!

How many 20 year olds today do you know who have the slightest clue to what it was all about?

And if things continue as they are, What, or better asked, who will be there for your children and grandchildren in the next 145 years to teach them the difference between God & Country and the debauchery created by the Federal incarnate?

In whose name and purpose will they be sacrificed to?

The Federal Beasts' insatiable appetite for control & the advancement of their One World Orthodoxy of the masses has NO boundaries or limitations?

In what capacity will they serve the Federal Beast, since any province of original being will have been carved from them in a manner leaving them much in the same condition as a patient who has undergone a lobotomy....for they will have known nothing else?

Time is hastening and the only thing remaining absolute is ourselves.... all else has been sold or given away via acts of Federal intervention/legislation, cloaked in political correctness & designed to cover the real political expediency & design of their maddening ways.

Their time clock has been stepped up & they are devouring this nation & us almost daily....if it weren't so real, one could argue that it has become almost 'fashionable'!

Our 'elected' politician's don't have a clue and if you ever listen to any of them, they don't make a lick a sense at all!

They are the blind leading the decapitated and what's scarier, is that they are making the rules without without so much as a backbone to substantiate any of their incoherent actions.

Hell, they don't even bother to read what they enact into law any more!

ALL ROADS HAVE ALWAYS LEAD TO 1865!

WHEN THE SOUTH LOST, THIS ENTIRE NATION LOST....but ONLY WE KNEW IT AT THE TIME! The question is, just how many others have come to figure that out at present?

48 Things To Do NOW

If You Fear an Economic Breakdown

1. Become a part-time entrepreneur, garage-market-dealer, urban farmer, welder, whatever. Just be productive under your own command. It doesn't matter what it is; just be directly productive, and directly deal with suppliers and clients. You'll find it awesomely liberating and it will be highly useful for the free underground market.
2. Switch off the TV. Read books!
3. Socialize with people that share your ethics and that are productive and respectful. Eat together, discuss, challenge each other, help each other, have a good time.
4. Get a safe or safe deposit box. Start moving all the cash you can get in there, convert at least 30% of your cash to silver and/or gold coins.
5. Invest in trust. Do minor deals for people on a trust basis. Taking others at their word, and let yourself be challenged by yours.
6. Start looking for matches. When you talk with people, memorize what they do, and if an opportunity comes up, connect them with someone else for a minor finders fee (a burger, a few beers, whatever).
8. Travel, but don't go sight-seeing – spend your time getting to know the people there. Think about business opportunities with them.
9. Start using aliases and pseudonyms. Get comfortable using them in real-life situations.
10. Learn to use cryptography.
11. Learn ethics and law (not the government law...).
12. Study logic, especially the fallacies.
13. Put more cash aside. Use your part-time job as the source of saved cash.
14. Start to invest cash with people you know, in off the books projects. Start making micro-loans to people or buy shares in their operations.
15. Learn basic double-entry book-keeping. Don't waste effort on the account-numbers they teach you – understand the concept and use it.
16. Learn to write in code. We all have to use recordings, bookkeeping, contact books, transaction notes etc. These should be hard to decipher for someone taking a quick glimpse, and even hard for someone taking time to analyze them. Use tricks like date-shifting, shorthand, making up your own terms, etc. Or, if you want to spend a little more effort, learn to use memorized ciphers, such as memorizing some longer text, then apply it as a simple shifting-key to what you write, with the page number or a marker as a keypart.
17. Tell other producers, entrepreneurs, traders etc that you appreciate what they do.
18. Buy primarily from others like you, stay away from the on-the-books market as much as you can.
19. When in conflict, ask someone to mediate. Solve conflicts yourself wherever you can. Use a mutually respected and trusted third party when necessary. Stay away from state “justice” whenever you can.
20. Start respecting secrets. Secrets are good most of the time; transparency is bad most of the time. Detox yourself from the “everything should be in the open” propaganda.
21. Slowly make your part-time, off-the-books business, your main line of income. Things like underground dental hygiene are very cool.
22. Learn that “off-the-books” means that you really have to excel in what you do. You have to provide quality.

23. Don't invest in single deals; invest in relationships with the market.
24. Get over it: Voting doesn't help at all.
25. Work with friends to create buying associations and selling associations. This will give you and others lots of money to save and lots of money to hide.
26. Harbor a fugitive. (Good ones, obviously.)
27. Offer small merchants silver or gold rather than fiat currency.
28. Sell your products in silver or gold.
29. Accept and use digital gold, such as Pecunix or C-gold.
30. Start a community currency in your town.
31. Use digital cash, such as eCache.
32. Get serious about protecting your Internet traffic.
33. Learn how to work your will beneficially. This is not about being "right," it is about causing benefit.
34. Fix your mistakes (you will make them). Learn not to repeat them.
35. Learn how to communicate effectively. Again, this is not about proving that you are right – this is about getting true ideas into other minds effectively.
36. Get comfortable with the term "Economic Civil Disobedience."
37. Spread the idea that the state is not magic – it is nothing more than a collection of your neighbors – no more ethical and noble than the lamer next door.
42. Learn how to find the false assumptions in arguments. Most public lies sound okay if you don't find their unspoken assumptions. If they pass too quickly, find the written version and search for the lie it contains.
43. Accept the fact that most people are confused and are just barely hanging on to their last shreds of self-esteem. Understand that state intellectuals like this condition, as it makes people easier to keep in line – a little shame goes a long way.

44. Don't waste your energy on the political crisis de jour. Busy your mind with more substantial things. Daily political dramas are a time-sink, and the statists like it. Stop following their script.
45. Use jurisdictional arbitrage to deprive the state of your money. Work with friends if the setup costs are too large for you.
46. Learn to defend yourself, your family, your neighbors and your town. No state means no military. Until you take this upon yourself, your plans will always have a gaping hole in their middle. There is no free lunch here either. Get weapons and be mentally prepared to use them. Decide in advance how and when you would use them – do not leave it to the emotion of the moment – that will make a shipwreck of the whole venture. Learn how to use them safely.
47. Do something nice for your neighbor. The people who live near you are a far more important part of your environment than any other.
48. Watch over your friends. Notice when they are having a bad day, show some kindness and concern. If they are overloaded, carry some of their burden. We all have bad times, and your bad day may come too. Help one another. Restore one another.

Take heed troopers, the time for sitting around waiting for the next tractor pull is over. Get off the couch and get connected!

Only a Southerner knows exactly how long 'directly' is,... as in: 'Going to town, be back directly.'

Even Southern babies know that 'Gimme some sugar' is not a request for the white, granular sweet substance that sits in a pretty little bowl in the middle of the table.

All Southerners know exactly when 'by and by' is. They might not use the term, but they know the concept well.

Only a Southerner knows instinctively that the best gesture of solace for a neighbor who's got trouble is a plate of hot fried chicken and a big bowl of cold potato salad. If the neighbor's trouble is a real crisis, they also know to add a large banana puddin!

Only Southerners grow up knowing the difference between 'right near' and 'a right far piece.' They also know that 'just down the road' can be 1 mile or 20.

Only a Southerner, both knows and understands, the difference between a redneck, a good ol' boy, and po' white trash.

No true Southerner would ever assume that the car with the flashing turn signal is actually going to make a turn.

Well is it time for another favorite southern recipe from the Southern Belles corner? We all can benefit from a little more expertise in the kitchen. Look no further than Terri's Kitchen from our very own state of North Carolina.

SQUASH CASSEROLE

SERVES 4 AS MAIN DISH OR 8 AS SIDE DISH

This is very good and a great way to use yellow squash from your garden. The casserole can be prepared and then frozen before baking.

INGREDIENTS

- 6 cups sliced squash, about 1/4-inch slices
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup shredded carrots
- 1 can low-salt cream of mushroom soup, condensed
- 1 cup low-fat or regular sour cream
- 1 package (7 ounces) stuffing mix cubes
- 1/2 cup melted butter
- 1 cup grated sharp cheddar or extra sharp cheese

Preheat oven to 400° F. In saucepan, mix squash, onions and carrots with a little water and cook, covered, until squash are tender. Blend mushroom soup and sour cream in small bowl. Add to drained squash mixture. In separate bowl, mix melted butter, stuffing mix cubes and grated cheese. In 4-quart baking dish (8x8 or 9x9 inch) layer half of crouton mix, all of squash, then other half of croutons mix. Bake, uncovered, for 20-25 minutes or until casserole is bubbly and topping is browned.

Notes: You can use seasoned or unseasoned stuffing cubes. If unseasoned, add your own thyme, parsley, sage, salt, pepper, etc. Frozen casseroles should be baked, covered, in a 350° oven for about 45 minutes, then remove cover to brown top for about 15 minutes.

NORTH AND THE SOUTH THAT WILL,
HOWEVER THIS WAR MAY END, MAKE THEM
TWO NATIONS...

I love the Union and the Constitution, but I would rather leave the Union with the Constitution than remain in the Union without it.
~ Jefferson Davis

I tried in all my power to avert this war. I saw it coming, and for 12 years, I worked night and day to prevent it, but I could not. The North was mad and blind; it would not let us govern ourselves, and so the war came, and now it must go on till the last man of this generation falls in his tracks, and his children seize the musket and fight our battle, unless you acknowledge our right to self-government. We are not fighting for slavery. We are fighting for Independence, and that, or extermination, we will have ...

Slavery never was an essential element. It was the only means of bringing other conflicting elements to an earlier culmination. It fired the musket which was already capped and loaded. THERE ARE ESSENTIAL DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE
